Visitors

Directed by Godfrey Reggio

Presented by Steven Soderbergh, Visitors reveals humanity's trancelike relationship with technology, which connects humans in extreme emotional states to experiences far outside themselves. Beyond simply relaying information about the historical moment in which we live, the film is a visceral exploration of the senses and the kinds of machinery we've built to expand them.

Visitors, the fourth feature-length collaboration between filmmaker Godfrey Reggio (Koyaanisqatsi, Powaqqatsi and Naqoyqatsi) and composer Philip Glass, was made with filmmaker Jon Kane. The screening will be followed by a panel discussion with Reggio and Langdon Winner, Rensselaer professor of science and technology studies.

Godfrey Reggio is a pioneer of a form of filmmaking that uses poetic image sequences to build toward moments of extraordinary emotional impact and transcendence. He is best known for the Qatsi trilogy: essays of image and music that question the world in which we live. Reggio's Koyaanisqatsi, made in collaboration with composer Philip Glass and photography director Ron Fricke, drew critical acclaim from national and international audiences and launched the Qatsi trilogy. Reggio's filmography, all scored by collaborator Philip Glass, includes Koyaanisqatsi (1982), Powaqqatsi (1988), Naqoyqatsi (2002), Anima Mundi (1992), and Evidence (1995). For the past 13 years, Reggio has been on the faculty of the Telluride Film Festival as a resident curator and presenter of films. He also lectures on technology, culture, and cinema.

Langdon Winner is a political theorist who focuses upon social and political issues that surround modern technological change. He holds the Thomas Phelan Chair of Humanities and Social Sciences at Rensselaer. Among his writings include Autonomous Technology, a study of the idea of "technology-out-of-control" in modern social thought and The Whale and the Reactor: A Search for Limits in an Age of High Technology. A sometimes rock critic, he produced, sang and played piano on the notorious rock and roll hoax album, The Masked Marauders. His recent video in the RPI TALKS series, "Thinking Outside the Box IS the New Box," offers a comic send up of today's fetishism of innovation. Professor Winner's thoughts on a variety of issues – energy, climate change, public education, and the like – appear regularly in his blog, Technopolis. He was advisor to Godfrey Reggio on the film Koyaanisqatsi.
